

Mike Burnam, StorageMart CEO

Mike Burnam is the CEO of StorageMart and is responsible for acquisitions, risk management, and capital investments and has been responsible for over $2 billion in self-storage acquisitions and development.

Mike started in the self-storage business in 1974 and had a hand in developing many of the family's businesses, including apartment management, mobile home park management, ownership of an insurance agency, real estate agency, travel agency and trash hauling company. Mike was vital to the storage site selection process and management of self-storage facilities in the early years of building one of the first self-storage businesses. Between 1974 and 1986, he and his partners built storage properties throughout Florida, Mississippi, Kentucky, North and South Carolina and Alabama.

An international promoter of the self-storage industry, Mike was President of the national Self Storage Association in 1994, again elected to a national board position of the association in 2005 and on the Board of Directors for the Canadian Self Storage Association in 2008. Mike is a requested speaker at national and international storage events.

Mike married in 1973; he and his wife, Janice, have 2 children and 6 grandchildren. In August 2007 Mike's son joined the company in the construction department and became the third generation to work in the family's self-storage business.